

HOMEOPATHY

brings life back into balance and reduces the stresses of modern lifestyles.

Homeopathy treats the whole person; the physical, emotional and mental aspects, and prescribes on the specific characteristics of the individual.

The homeopathic remedies stimulate and assist the body's natural ability to heal itself. Minute doses of plant, animal and mineral are used, extracting the energy only, and therefore no crude or toxic substance remains.

Homeopathy can be used in conjunction with orthodox medicine and is fully effective over a whole range of illnesses.

Samuel Hahnemann founded homeopathy in the 1800's and there have been many great and innovative homeopaths who have carried on this ever-expanding form of medicine.

In England, visits to homeopathic physicians are increasing at a rate of 39% per year. The Royal family has been under homeopathic care since the 1830's.

A British consumer organisation reported that 70% of those who had tried homeopathy were cured or improved by it. Forty-eight percent of British physicians refer patients to homeopathic practitioners.

In France, 11,000 doctors utilise homeopathic medicines, and six medical schools offer degree courses. "Le Nouvel Observateur", one of France's leading magazines, noted that President Mitterrand and six medical school deans had called for more research on homeopathy. The author editorialised "It is a fact that homeopathy obtains results, sometimes spectacular results."

Homeopathy is widespread in Europe, America and even more popular in Asia, especially India, Pakistan and Sri Lanka, in part because of the support it received from Mahatma Gandhi. There are over 120 homeopathic medical schools in India, 19 maintained by the State and over 100,000 practitioners.

As internationally acclaimed violinist and humanitarian Yehudi Menuhin once said: "Homeopathy is one of the few medical specialities which carries no penalties - only benefits."

Source: Ullman, Dana, "Discover Homeopathy: Medicine for the 21st Century", North Atlantic Books, California, 1991.

The Homeopathic Consultation

An in depth discussion may take 1½ hours. Details of past medical history, family traits, the individual symptoms of the complaint and factors that ameliorate or aggravate the condition will be analysed. Likes and dislikes will also be considered in the assessment to find the remedy to suit the individual characteristics of the patient. Unusual, peculiar or seemingly unrelated symptoms are important and may lead directly to the specific remedy choice.

Homeopathy links mind and body as one inseparable energy.

If you are interested in experiencing what homeopathy can do for you, contact

Barbara Moran
Telephone 478 6444
Browns Bay, Auckland

